Limitations and Exclusions to Health Benefits

No benefit is payable for:

- Expenses for which benefits are payable under a Workers' Compensation Act or a similar statute
- Expenses incurred due to intentionally self-inflicted injuries
- Expenses incurred due to civil disorder or war, whether or not war was declared
- Expenses incurred due to committing a criminal offense or provoking an assault
- Expenses for which benefits are payable under a government plan
- Expenses for benefits which are legally prohibited by the government from coverage
- Services or supplies received outside of Canada
- Expenses for drugs which, in the insurer's opinion, are experimental
- Expenses for dietary supplements, vitamins and infant foods
- Expenses for contraceptives (other than oral and intrauterine devices)
- Expenses for drugs if they are used for the treatment of infertility
- Expenses for "in vitro" or "in vivo" procedures, or any other infertility procedures
- Dental expenses, except those specifically provided under eligible expenses for treatment of accidental injuries to natural teeth
- Utilization fees which are imposed by the Provincial Health Care Plan for the use of a service
- Expenses for the regular treatment of an injury or disease which existed before the member's or dependant's departure from his/her province of residence
- Any other exclusion identified in the policy contract